

UNITARIAN UNIVERSALIST
FELLOWSHIP of LONGVIEW

Announcements

Marolen

Next Sunday is like a triple-dip ice cream cone!

First, we have an especially good and interesting speaker: Martin Bryant. He spoke at the Fellowship last year about cruelty to animals and vegetarianism. This time his talk is entitled, "Unholy Separation." Martin asks, "Can any true spirituality be separated from anything? What about separation of church and state and scientific objectivity? Could these be 'unholy'?"

Martin Bryant of Houston, Texas, is an industrial software trainer, dad, world traveler, amateur choral composer, and a long-time Unitarian Universalist; he was a co-founder of Wildflower Church in Austin.

Second scoop: members and friends of the UU Fellowship of Tyler will be joining us. They are making arrangements to rent a large vehicle so they can ride together (and reduce their carbon footprint).

And the third scoop: We are going to have a POT LUCK luncheon after services and talkback. so we can share our favorite main dishes, salads, breads, and vegetable dishes with our fellow UU's. Huey will bring smoked briskets. They will treat us to their best (and our just) desserts.

If you are able, please come at 10:00 AM and help us set up for the Pot Luck.

Sky:

The Annual Congregational Business Meeting was held last Sunday after services and talkback. Members voted on three items: a Behavioral Covenant, the 2010-2011 budget, and the governing board slate. All three items passed. The new board will take over the duties of leadership July 1.